

The Indiana Telephone Privacy Law has worked very well. I have gone from 2 or 3 calls a day to none. This is the way that I and many of my friends want it to be. Most are a waste of my time and at times are fraudulent. Any change that would lessen Indiana or any States law would be a disservice to the public. Telemarketers are annoying and rude. If they need to sell something they can use the mail. As the saying goes "don't fix what's not broken".
